

Renewing The Countryside has an intern position open for Summer 2007.

This is an unpaid internship opportunity with paid travel expenses.

This position is a great opportunity for a self-motivated individual to work with and learn about local food systems, rural revitalization, microenterprises, sustainable tourism, and marketing. It will also include representing RTC at our summer community events and festivals. This position can be modified to the intern's specific interest and skills.

Work will be performed in our Minneapolis based office along with independent correspondence off-site via email and phone. The position runs from June 1st - September 15th with flexibility and on average 10-15 hours per week.

Desired skills:

Knowledge of local food systems, marketing and/or tourism.

Photography

Creative writing

Experience with blogging and making YouTube videos

If you are interested, please send your resume and a comprehensive cover letter detailing your experience, interest, and availability.

To apply, send cover letter and resume to Lindsay Rebhan at lindsay@rtcinfo.org or call for more information, 612-871-1541.

Renewing the Countryside is a 501(c)3 non-profit that strengthens rural areas by championing and supporting farmers, artists, entrepreneurs, educators, activists, and others who are revitalizing the countryside through innovative endeavors. We build awareness and support for these initiatives by collecting and sharing stories of rural renewal, providing practical assistance and networking opportunities for those working to improve rural America, and fostering connections between urban and rural people. <http://www.renewingthecountryside.org>

Green Routes is a statewide green tourism initiative in Minnesota, coordinated by Renewing the Countryside. Green Routes directs people to places where they can get locally grown food and locally made products as well as participate in a community's natural attractions and amenities. <http://www.greenroutes.org>
